

PRESS RELEASE

02/10/2018

E is for Epic is back in the studio recording their New Single, called Glorious.

January 18th, 2018 a pilot version was released on Band Camp, with the final version to be released in March.

This song is an ode to past and present band mates and their life journeys. The song is sung in the 1st person (protagonist and orator). Our orator describes the life detours of his band mates. He describes them as selling their 'soul to the devil' or 'to the man'. The drummers sell his soul to the devil, thru Musical Compromise. The bass sells it to the man; as he stops practicing so he can put in more hours at his day job. In one of the song's tag lines, our orator tells us that he's buying back the souls of his lost band mates. He boasts of his "Glorious Friends" that will help him in his mission. The bridge lines is performed with a somewhat South American feel and tell us why our orators mission is so important. The answer is ... Ha Ha Ha! You'll have to listen to the song to find out.
